

I saw a Lady

*I saw a Lady all dressed in white
She was clothed with the Sun, no need of light.
A crown of stars was on her head
The moon beneath her feet
And one like the son of man
Led her into the marriage feast.*

*I saw a lady all dressed in white
She was the faithful one, a virgin all her life.
She sought the way of peace that no other found
And though temptation followed her
She did not let it take her crown.*

Chorus;

*May you be happy
May your joy fill all the Earth
May your kingdom last forever
Out into the Universe, Out into the Universe.*

*I saw a lady all dressed in white
Dressed of the father with jewels of light.
She sang a wedding song that no one could sing
The long-awaited marriage had now come between the bride and King.*

*I saw a lady all dressed with light
It was Jerusalem from heavens height.
The Father and the Son were sitting on the throne
The River of waters flowed among the many precious stones.*
